Maria Sharapova is one of the world's most popular female athletes. She is a former World no.1 tennis player, Wimbledon and Australian Open champion. In 2004, at the age 17, she defeated champion and top player Serena Williams twice in the Wimbledon final.

An injury to her right shoulder cut her 2008 season short, and Sharapova underwent surgery in October of that year. After the operation in 2008 she returned to playing and improved her rating.

Sharapova is the face in a number of modeling sports journals illustrating sports swimsuits. She has been featured in many advertisements including Nike, Prince, Canon and many other women's fashion magazines. In 2008 she was named the world's highest-paid female athlete by Forbes.
